his sojourn in Kansas City was not of long duration, for he was soon pulled back to Chicago. Since joining the Columbus team at the end of last season he has been twice released by Loftus on account of disagreements, but Manning has confidence in his own ability to handle the pitcher. Friend pitched good ball while in Columbus and will fit in well in the Blues' pitching staff.

A special to The Journal from Detroit states that President Manning is attempting to secure temporarily the services of Count Kuhne, the infielder, who played with Pittsburg during the early part of this season. If he is successful the Blues will be well fixed, with an extra infielder, an extra outfielder and another pitcher.

Meanwhile, the news that Connaughton is on his way to recovery and will be able to leave the hospital in a few days is most welcome. Mr. Young, of Washington, is quoted as saying: "Now, we all agreed at the board meeting that Holmes, in the first place, was wrong and acted the part of the blackguard in ridiculing Mr. Freedman by the word he uttered. I am not familiar with the meaning of the word, but I am told that it is an insult to and a reflection on the creed in which many prosperous citizens of this country are brought up. This insult cast by Holmes at hundreds of patrons of the game in New York incensed Mr. Freedman, though he admitted that he was in the wrong by carrying his power to such a length as to interfere with the game, and to order his team off the field."

"More brains and less brawn," that's the 'More brains and less brawn,' that's the slogan of all major league managers now siogan of all major league managers now-adays," says President Watkins. "The fence-hitters like Pete Browning, who pushed knots out of the fence with long home runs, are more valuable as section hands or hodcarriers in these days of base-ball. That Baltimore club, as it stands, has the brightest bunch of brains of any team in the league. They are constantly team in the league. They are constantly wrapped in a study during the game, and wrapped in a study during the game, and their study is confined almost wholly to the pitcher. 'What has the pitcher got to-day that we can't hit? Is he wasting a couple of balls, or is he shoving the first one over?" says McGraw or Jennings or Kelley to himself. After the pitcher is sized up they work accordingly. If the pitcher is wasting a ball or two, the brainy chaps on Hanlon's team will hit when the pitcher least expects it. That's a key to their style of playing, and is it any wontheir style of playing, and is it any won-der that they win?"

"I remember the very first game he pitched in the big league. It was at Indianapolis. Rusie was a great big awkward boy and green as they make 'em. Mike Kelly went down on the coaching line and knelt down, with his elbow on his knee, and eyed the lad through several innings. When he got through he came up and tipped me the wink and said, "That boy is a comer. They may be just trying him and may get tired. If they let him go, you get him." I guess Mike hit it about right." "Dexter must have been quite a kid when he came along?" someone else suggested. "I guess he had all his feathers on," remarked Comiskey.—Chicago News.

BLUES DEFEAT DETROIT

talling's Men Play a Bad Fielding Game-Briggs Strikes Out Nine Men-Blues Secured a Runaway Start and Held It.

DETROIT, MICH., Aug. 26.-(Special.) Crippled but not disheartened the Kansas City Rough Riders set out to retrieve some of their lost laurels in the race for the pennant at Bennett park to-day. They rode over the Wolverines rough shod and had the contest well in hand from the start. The Blues had lost seven out of nine games, and were crippled by the absence of Connaughton. The Stallings tribe acted like a man with a bad case of rattles, accumulating more misplays in nine innings than they were credited with in the entire Minneapolis series. This was of course unfortunate for the home team. but it was peach pie and cream to the Manning outfit. Detroit made nine hits and committed eight rank errors. Perhaps Manning outlit. Detroit made nine hits and committed eight rank errors. Perhaps the fact that President Watkins of the Pittsburg club viewed the game from the grand stand was the cause for the sorry exhibition given by Ganzel, who was loaned to Detroit for the season, and is booked to rejoin the Pirates after the Western league season ends.

"Buttons" Briggs pitched a fast game. It is true that three of his four gitts masqueraded over the pan as runs, but he struck out nine men, which, next to the bunch of eleven struck out by Waddell in the early part of the season, is the home record of the year. McVicker fell a victim three times and Williams and Frishee struck out twice each. In the eighth, with the corners loaded and one out he struck out Campau. Then he turned on Williams with high ones, an unprecedented proceeding for a pitcher in a tight box, and caused him to saw holes in the air.

The Blues broke to a runaway start, two bases on balls, singles by Williams and O'Hagan, two woolly errors by Ganzel and Dungan's fumble, driving in a bunch of four. In the second, a base, two hits and Stallings' inability to head off a grounder sent in two more. Detroit took one in the fourth on a free base, two hits and a wild throw by Frisbee. The Blues scored once in the fifth on an error, a passed ball and Wilson's twobagger. Detroit took one in its half on a hit by pitcher, an out and a hit. Both teams scored their last runs in the seventh. Two misplays and a passed ball sent in one of the Blues. Detroit grabbed two on three singles, a steal and a wild throw. Score:

Wichita Ball Team Disbands.

WICHITA, KAS. Aug. Z.—(Special.) The Wichita baseball club disbanded to-day and the players left for all parts of the country, most of them going to their homes. Montgomery, Spencer and Latham left to-night for Denison, Tex., where they will finish the season. Umpire Cahill, Manager McClosky and Mayer will remain here for a couple of weeks. Lack of patronage and mismanagement of the subscription list contributed by the citizens was the cause of the disbanding.

was standing by, engaged by the divorced husband.

The leading roles were played by T. Worth English and his lately divorced wife. The bone of contention was their daughter, and the others were merely side lights. Mrs. English has been residing at the home of her mother, at $28 Ann avenue, ever since she obtained the divorce from her husband, and with her has been the child. Mr. English resides in Oklahoma City, and yesterday, according to Officer Bradbury, he called at the Reed home and attempted to see his daughter. Mrs. English appeared upon the scene, and prevented this, but was finally induced by English to meet him later on in the office of Police Judge McCamish, who is a relative. While Mrs. English and her mother, Mrs. Reed, accompanied by the little girl, were on their way to the meeting place, English suddenly appeared, and grabbed the little one up in his arms.

"She's as much mine as she is any one's, ain't you, sweet." he cried, but the girl struggled to get away from him. The mother screamed, the grandmother seconded her efforts, and the child added her shrill treble to the tumult. English made an effort to take the girl to a buggy which he had in waiting close by, but the two women had a firm hold on his coattail, and he was frustrated. Judge McCamish looked out of his office window when he heard all the noise, and as Officer Eradbury came running to see what was the matter, he shouted to the officer to arrest the man.

They were all taken before Judge McCamish together, and it took the hardest sort of an argument on the part of English to convince the judge that he had no intention of kidnaping the child. However, at the solicitation of the women, and on the promise of English to cause no further rouble the case against him was dismissed and he was allowed to go. Officer Bradbury escorted the victorious women home.

Arrangements were made yesterday by Chief Hale for ten men and the white pompier team of horses, Dan and Charley, from headquarters, to take part in the contest of firemen for prizes at the Omaha exposition September 5 to 10. There is $10,000 offered in prizes and the Kansas City firemen confidently expect to bring back a large share of it. The list of men made up yesterday who will probably go to Omaha is the pompler crew, composed of Captain John Egner, James Gilpatrick, Tom Connors, Mike Connors, Jack Evans, John Maher, Gus Willis and John Lynch. Two men, probably Captain John Hand and E. A. Hess, will go with the combination chemical and any Captain John Hand and E. A. Hess, will go with the combination chemical and hose wagon, which will also be taken. Mayor Jones gave his permission for the trip yesterday and the party will leave Kansas City on Sunday, September 4. It will be accompanied by Chief Hale, who will direct the movements of his men while in commetition.

when the government first began the publication of the official records of the civil war. The five volumes received bring the set up to date with about sixty volumes. The library gets one set direct from the department of public documents, but Mr. Child's gift will make one set available to the patrons for study away from the library.

Another present of books was received from Mrs. W. A. M. Vaughan, of Tenth and Locust streets. Most of the twenty-five volumes were published during the ten years preceding the civil war and contain several early standard American works on horticulture. Several books on the history of the Christian church are also among the lot, and one of these is especially interesting for its accounts of early times in Missourt.

A Big Kitchen.

The largest kitchen in the world is said to be in the Parisian store, the Bon Marche, which has 4,000 employes. The smallest kettle contairs 100 quarts and the largest 500. Each of the fifty roasting pans is big enough for 500 cutlets. When omelettes are on the bill of fare 7,800 eggs are cooked at once. For cooking alone, sixty cooks and 100 assistants are always at the ranges.
